

THE TOP TEN TRENDS THAT WILL SHAPE THE FUTURE OF THE INDIVIDUAL

- 1. With three billion more people sharing the planet, governments will attempt to control individual actions under the guise of the common good.
- 2. A dangerous Invisible War is emerging between global organizations, governments, and religion, competing to control individual rights, minds, and freedoms.
- 3. Personal-wealth creation and freedom will be available to more individuals in the future.
- 4. A global emphasis on peace and security will result in a world in which individuals will experience less war and tyranny.
- 5. Open societies, free trade, and the protection of individual rights will be necessary components of increased individual prosperity in the future.
- 6. Privacy—including freedom from electronic, medical, genomic, and chemical tyranny—must be a fundamental right of individuals.
- 7. The right to live in democratic, free societies that respect the rule of law and protect individual rights will be recognized as a highly desired global value.
- 8. Individuals must protect their rights to open access to powerful information, communication, and innovation tools to explore, invent, communicate, and create.
- 9. Purposeful work—that is, meaningful, productive, and satisfying—will be demanded and achieved by record percentages of individuals worldwide.
- 10. Individuals need to be on guard to protect against the engineering of information that might limit personal freedoms.
